DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Miller.

In figures 11-15, the Miller patent shows a cover including an elongate channel and a retainer engageable with the needle assembly with the elongate channel positioned over the needle, a mount including a socket to rigidly retain the luer hub of the needle assembly, a hinge, the cover being mounted to the mount by the hinge with the elongate channel extending longitudinally from the hinge; a flexible tear strip extending over the channel, enclosing the needle with the channel.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2-40 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Miller in view of Opalek. The Miller patent does not disclose a locking web. However, the use of locking webs in syringe safety shields is conventional in the art as evidenced by the Opalek patent.

In figures 7-10, the Opalek patent shows a locking web designed as part of the structure of a safety shield. The inserted arrows point to the main elements of the locking web in one of the various safety shield embodiments shown above. Accordingly, for a person of ordinary skill in the art, modifying the safety shield disclosed by Miller with a locking web as taught by Opalek, would have enhanced the safety capabilities of the apparatus and consequentially, would have been considered an obvious design choice.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Please review the teachings of U.S. Patent No. 5,599,313 (Gyure, et al.), and 4,664,259 (Landis).
